History of budget reforms in South Africa

Early 1990s Background

New government in 1994 – new challenges and opportunities

New constitution – changed structure and distribution of power – implications for way that public finances will be allocated

New government – critical commitment to improving the quality and coverage of public finances

New government did not inherit a clean slate

- '92/93 fiscal year budget net borrowing requirement = 8.7% GDP
- '94/95 Public debt rose to more than 47% GDP, up from 30% ten years earlier
- Little fiscal space to improve equitable delivery of services

The budget tools and system were inadequate to stabilise fiscal balances and manage required policy shifts

Government, parliament and government of South Africa initiated the Women's Budget Initiative with the intention of reorientating the National Budget post-apartheid

Politically the conditions were conducive for change and this provided an opportunity for new reforms

SA government had international support by Public Finance Management experts

The Value for Money Agenda

PFMA implementation plans included performance management

PFMA gave departments responsibility to spend within approved budgets and against policy/performance commitments

PFMA requires measurable objectives by programme

VFM is arguably the hardest thing to achieve through the budget

NT has no direct say in how a department spends its money or how services are delivered, and cannot impose sanctions for poor spending

Our philosophy has been that if departments report on performance alongside spending, then parliament, the public, the media can play a role in improving the quality of spending

It's all about accountability, which is not a financial management issue but a political issue

Successes and challenges in implementing reforms (lessons learned)

What supported successful reforms

- Democratic transition and a new Constitution
- Strong political buy-in: reforms were championed by the Minister of Finance, who carried broad political support
- Good international practices were emulated, but customised to suit the South African situation (self-determined)
- Simple frameworks used
- Consultation with relevant stakeholders when reforms are introduced
- · Where relevant, pilot before full implementation
- Comprehensive implementation
- Recently, collaboration of the departments at the centre of government to collectively improve performance of government

Transparency in initiatives

WHAT IS MTBPS?

The Medium-Term Budget Policy Statement (MTBPS) sets out
The MTBPS plays a critical role in the entire budgetary the policy framework for the Budget that is presented every February, updates National Treasury's economic forecasts, (that refers to the broad budgetary aggregates of total estimates the budget numbers for the medium term, adjusts the budgets of government departments for the current financial year and makes emergency changes to spending.

WHEN IS THE MTBPS TABLED?

It is tabled three months before the national budget, usually in

WHY IS THE MTBPS IMPORTANT?

(that refers to the broad budgetary aggregates of total revenue, expenditure and borrowing for a given year) for the next national budget. It also provides Parliament and the country as a whole with an update on how Treasury perceives the present economic situation. The budget is the most important economic instrument of government, as it reflects the country's socioeconomic policy priorities by translating priorities and political commitments October every year. It is tabled immediately after the Budget into expenditure. Minister Godongwana is expected to Review and Recommendation Report (BRRR) process, where present South Africa's economic outlook as analysed and

Transparency Scores

- South Africa slipped to 4th from a 2nd spot in 2021
- In 2023, South Africa scored 83 (out of 100).
- Despite this, South Africa still maintains its reputation as a global leader.
- Only 8 countries out of 125 have a transparency score of 80 or more.

CROSS CUTTING PRIORITIES REFORMS

Cross cutting priories update

GRB	STI	СВТ
Roadmap developed	TOR	Phase 1 pilot 2022
GNA –2024 informed pilot selection 1st pilot	Governance structure	Methodology review
Workshops done 2 nd pilot 1 st Gender Budget statement 2025	Selection of sectors Include department in a tagging exercise	Workshop and training 2 nd phase of the pilot

- If it is everyone's problem it becomes no one's problem
- All cross cutting priorities must be mainstreamed into the sector plans and budgets
- Sector departments can reprioritise funds in their baselines towards these priorities
- Sector leads
   DFFE,DWYPD,DSI provide guidance on the gaps to be addressed

Lessons learnt from the pilots

- Gender and climate gap should inform planning analysis (First step)
- Support for development of interventions and indicators for measuring should be provided to a select departments
- Silos working between finance, planning & ME, gender focal points and programme managers
- Departments are doing the bare minimum because that was sufficient in the past
- The request for more interventions in core programmes
- Mainstreaming of cross cutting priorities is lagging behind
- Support is needed from Interdepartmental Task Team
- Next steps
- Expand the number of departments
- Add other spheres of government starting with provinces
- Publish tagging framework for cross cutting priorities

Improved Budget practices

How do the reforms enhance service delivery considering the South African fiscal outlook?

- The first phase of the reforms established structures and legislation to support governance
- The second phase mainly focused on testing and implementation
- The current phase is about improving the structures and tools available to maximise the available resources
- The natation faces similar challenges as those they inherited with debt levels being high and low economic growth
- Providing an opportunity to grow together and find solutions
- Transparency tackles the market perception and literacy gaps
- Transparency enhances accountability
- The cross cutting reform assists with dealing with priorities that can be neglected when not considered by the collective gov agenda
